My name is David Ginsberg, and I'm running for Seattle City Council to bring a pragmatic, decisive and results-oriented approach to City Hall so we can create a more livable and sustainable future.

As a Solutions Architect I've earned a reputation for bringing diverse groups together around a common vision and for delivering on-time and within budget.

After 12 long years with the incumbent:

- traffic is worse today than ever before.
- housing is less affordable today.
- more of our kids than ever are failing.
- our business climate has grown worse.

Clearly the ways of the past aren't working. It's time to pass the torch to a new generation of leaders who aren't afraid to take decisive action for the future of our city.

I'm part of that generation, and I'm ready to get to work creating a brighter future with a better quality of life for all.

My partner and I are raising twins adopted from a drug-addicted mother, and live in West Seattle's green-built High Point neighborhood where I serve on the Design Review Committee and as an elected PCO. Our kids attend Seattle Public Schools and we're active in our PTA. I'm also 2nd Vice Chair of the 34th District Democrats. —I'll work for you.
